

Epitome Journals

International Journal of Multidisciplinary Research

ISSN : 2395-6968 | Impact Factor = 3.656

Eliotian Themes in D. H. Lawrence's Sons and Lovers

Shailaja Kedia

Research Scholar

Department of English

Sidho-Kanho-Birsha University

shailaja.kedia@gmail.com

Dr Aparajita Hazra*

Professor and Head

Department of English

Sidho-Kanho-Birsha University

dr.aparajitahazra@gmail.com

Abstract :

The status quo during early twentieth century depersonalised the universe. Therefore, thematic similarity of dealing with human predicament caused by arid rationalism can be found as common theme of the modernist writers. Along with dealing with the plight presented in their works the article makes a comparative study of some of T. S. Eliot's poems with D. H. Lawrence's Sons and Lovers and thus points out similarities and dissimilarities of different thematic aspects among those works.

Keywords :

modern crisis, First World War, arid rationalism, spiritual value, instinct, intertextuality.