ABSTRACT

The textual trans-deconstruction is a symbolic manifestation of undoing in the text. Its purpose is not to end up abruptly in the multiplicity of meanings, but to remain centered in a free play of meanings in the text till the final meaning is reached. It aims at reaching the absolute truth in the form of conclusion reviewed by many critics through intellectual discourses in the different disciplines of studies. The reading is a deeper understanding of certain natural relationship between the text by the author and the center that monitors the complete text. There is a fixed free play of signs. This may be the concrete perception of the author which cannot be made dead in the actual analysis of the text. He is to be studied at a certain point of objectivity in the text. The style of his language, competency and patterns has unconsciously imbibed into the text. The mystic knowledge which is not accessible for the textual analysis is studied through trans-deconstruction.
